Dear NCOS Members,

During this time of uncertainty surrounding COVID-19, we wanted to reach out to all of you and offer resources and guidance that may be helpful when making decisions for your staff, practice and patients.

As you assess how to move forward in caring for your patients and operating your practice, please consider the following guidance and best practices from state and federal experts working on the front lines in addressing the pandemic. Ultimately, each OD must decide their own course of action over the coming weeks and months. We know that the health and safety of your patients, staff and family will be at the forefront of this decision. Please know that the NCOS stands ready to assist and provide information to help you traverse our current challenges. These considerations are not policy but suggestions to help you make personal, individual decisions in the best interests of your businesses and patients. As we get more information, we as a society will be working to bring these resources to you.

Please visit <https://www.aoa.org/coronavirus> to find current developments and practice tools for continued guidance.
